Bank president lives Snoopy kind of life

By Suzanne Sproul

Richard Jett said he simply loves Snoopy.

And the president and chief executive officer of Empire Bank in Ontario doesn't care who knows it.

A Snoopy lamp, given Jett by an anonymous co-worker, holds a prominent position on the president's oversized office desk.

The rest of the man's more than 600-piece collection, ranging from Christmas ornaments to figurines, occupies a room of its own at his Covina Hills home. One of the oldest pieces in his collection is an 18-year-old stuffed Snoopy doll the Jett family lovingly dressed up as Santa Claus for Christmas.

His favorite piece is a Snoopy music box which appropriately enough plays the song, "The Impossible Dream." His staff gave him the gift when he worked in San Francisco. And another memorable piece is a 1969 specially minted coin from that year's moon launch — the module for that trip was called, "Snoopy."

"I have a thing about people who are impressed with themselves. People are too impressed with themselves. We all have a little kid inside of us and I love Snoopy.

"I don't know if Charles Schulz would like hearing this, but I think of Snoopy as being the epitome of average — he's not handsome, he has a big nose and a paunch. Physically he's like most of us. He simply enjoys being himself and that's a message I think we all can learn from," said Jett, sitting in his spacious Haven Avenue office.

Jett believes so strongly in Snoopy that the beloved beagle is a centerpiece of many of the speeches he gives to community clubs.

His speeches, "Snoopy Says ...," are among his most popular. Snoopy is a tremendous icebreaker with people of all ages, he said.

Whether he's discussing some steps to success with Lions Club members or talking about economics with high school students, Jett said he always brings up Snoopy.

"He's an oddball. He's thought to be an orphan. He's everything that's not supposed to make it, yet he's the second most successful cartoon character ever, only to Mickey Mouse and the rest of the Disney characters. Everyone

Fate of San Antonio Lakes project must wait

By Candysse Miller

The fate of the proposed San Antonio Lakes development in Upland will have to wait until at least next month, when the developer will present a plan to phase in its construction in proportion to construction of a proposed cross-town expressway.

The council decided Monday night to continue deliberations of the 1,500-residential unit development until Feb. 18, when Pennhill Land Company representatives will unveil the phasing plan at a special council meeting.

Pennhill's proposal relies greatly on the success of an incomplete plan to bypass delays in building the proposed Foothill Freeway — which would help handle the traffic generated by the project — by having the city fund its own cross-town expressway along the freeway corridor.

City officials see the plan as the way to pull traffic off congested Upland streets. Pennhill planners also view it as a key to their success.

"We were relying quite heavily last year in Proposition A to do well and now that it (has been defeated) a lot of time has been lost to get on the state (freeway) plan," said Upland City Engineer Fred Blanchard. "We're talking a lot of years (to get the Foothill Freeway built), but our problems are far too immediate to wait that long."

Instead, Upland has devised a

Instead, Upland has devised a plan that could have a four-lane expressway under construction within three years.

The expressway would be built along the freeway corridor right-of-way with access only at major intersections and traffic lights coordinated to provide a smooth traffic flow, Blanchard said.

"It would allow regional traffic traveling from east to west that doesn't want to use the (San Bernardino) freeway to get through the community without using streets that are already congested," he explained.

When the freeway is ready to be built, construction crews would pave over the expressway, keeping two lanes open at a time to prevent traffic buildup, said

Although expressways have been built across the country, the idea of building and financing the stretch is new to Upland.

The concept is far from complete. Financing schemes still are being devised, said

Blanchard.

Upland officials hope, however, that increased tax revenues generated through the city's Redevelopment Agency will help fund the $10 million project.

A public hearing on the expressway is not expected until summer.

When Upland began toying with the expressway idea just over a month ago, Pennhill developers saw it as a possible solution to their traffic woes, and began a new traffic study.

The San Antonio Lakes plan has been criticized for creating See EXPRESSWAY/Page 7 loves him because he's loved for who he is," the bank president said.

That's the message Jett said he wants to get across.

"Snoopy runs with kings and with a little bird named Woodstock. He's less concerned about the names he knows. He's just interested in people.

"It's that way with Charlie Brown, too. For the past 30 years Charlie Brown has tried to kick the football with Lucy holding it for him and every time Lucy has pulled it right out from under him. Yet Charlie Brown keeps trying. He has tenacity and the will to succeed. He's willing to come back even when the odds are against him. Those are the qualities needed to succeed," he said.

What a person needs to be concerned about is deciding what it will take to achieve personal success, said the secretary-treasurer of the Southern California Independent Bankers Association and president of the Covina Chamber of Commerce.

"You need to decide what will make you happy. Don't worry about what others think you should do in order to be called successful. Most people try and live through the eyes of someone else. We all need to be ourselves. We need to be a bit more human," he said.

This music box is Jett's favorite

R.C. district challenges denial of school project

A Rancho Cucamonga school district will challenge a Planning Commission decision turning down a proposed administrative office and bus barn project.

Planners formally denied last week the Alta Loma School District's plans to build office and warehouse facilities owing to differences with the neighborhood surrounding the Residents have complained to planning commissioners that the district's project would not be a good neighbor. The commission agreed that the project on the east side of Beryl Street just south of 19th Street was "incompatible" with the area.

But district officials are in a quandary over where to build a new headquarters, which have to be located within district boundaries. The district currently is housed in office adjacent to the professional office space leased by City Hall.

Assistant Superintendent Stacy Nelson said the project is in limbo until the Rancho Cucamonga City Council passes judgment on the appeal.

Floyd Stork, the district's development consultant, said the appeal will be postponed at least until the council's second meeting in February.
The project on the 5.25-acre site includes a 10,500-squarefoot office, a 16,000-square-foot warehouse and a maintenance building.

Because the project does not include any classroom space, the plans are subject to the city's design review process, which is considered strict.

In addition, the Planning Commission has told city staffers to order the district to remove a portable storage

Metallic balloons are dangerous

By Matt Coker

They sport the faces of snappy little slogans, cartoon characters and, in recent weeks, Santa Claus, but to power officials there's nothing cute about them.

They are metallic balloons, which come in all shapes and sizes and can be purchased at toy stores, special events and right next to the supermarket check-out line.

Recently, a helium-filled metallic balloon, which had been released into the air, contacted an overhead electrical power line in the areas of Kadota and Grand avenues south of Montclair, causing the line to burn down, said Clark Burnett, Southern California Edison area manager for Montclair, Upland and Chino.

The resulting power outage affected about 1,900 Edison customers, who were without electricity anywhere from 20 minutes to two hours, he said.

Service was completely restored by 5 p.m. to the area bordered by Kingsley Avenue to the north, Monte Vista Avenue to the east, the Los Angeles County line to the west and Francis Street to the south, Burnett said.

The helium-filled objects can be picked up for between a few bits and $3, but they cost Southern California Edision $500,000 in 1986, he said.

"The shiny metallic covering on a helium balloon is an excellent conductor of electricity, so when metallic-covered balloons contact power lines, there's a real possibility they will cause a short circuit," he said. "That results in a flash of heat which may sever the wires and cause them to fall."

The loss of power can be an inconvenience to some and devastating to others.

"Hospitals and essential services can be forced onto expensive stand-by generators, businesses can lose the ability to operate, frozen foods may spoil, computers may lose memory or suddenly shut down, signal lights can fail and air conditioners, ovens and lights may be useless," Burnett said.

Traffic signals also can be affected, posing risks on the roads, he said.

Between January and October of 1986, metallic balloons accounted for 205 power interuptions affecting 260,000 Edison customers and costing $500,000 so far, he said.

(There still are outstanding claims by customers seeking retribution for damaged video cassette recorders, computers and electronic components, he explained).

In all of 1985, 106 power interuptions were attributed to See BALLOONS/Page 8

A to launch school unification study

By Lee Peterson

Rancho Cucamonga's Chamber of Commerce will not be the only group that will launch a committee to study a merger of the city's four elementary school districts.

The Rancho Cucamonga Council PTA has announced plans of its own to tackle the subject of school district consolidation.

Linda Eddy of the Council PTA, who will co-chair the merger committee, said their study would emphasize the educational question of bringing under one umbrella the districts of Etiwanda, Alta Loma, Cucamonga and Central.

'Would reorganization of school districts result in better educational programs for students, more economically?" will be the question the panel is set to consider.

Unification with the Chaffey Joint Union High School District also will be studied by both Eddy said the PTA's committee will be completely separate from the chamber's panel. However, it is unclear if there will be dual members.

The PTA will meet today to form the full 29-member committee. Each school district, Eddy said, will be asked to designate an administrator, a teacher, a parent and a board member to participate.

City officials, chamber representatives and the Baldy View Chapter of the Building Industry Association also will be invited to participate.

Tiina Ross, the chamber board of directors member who will chair the chamber's committee, said no specific date has been set to appoint merger study panel members.

Chamber President Lowell Gomes has said there is no set number of members in the chamber committee. He said leaders from Rancho Cucamonga's business, education and government communities will be invited to serve.

Cucamonga School District Superintendent John Costello said, as he sees it, the PTA's study will be more comprehensive. EX

In its new "phasing" proposal, Pennhill will offer to build the development incrementally. As it waits for the expressway to be built, it will provide mitigations for ongoing traffic problems, said Bill Garwin, a partner in the development firm.

The city has been letting in about 200 to 300 houses at a time. That doesn't have much of an impact because residential generates less traffic than commercial," Garwin said.
"What we will be proposing is a program to build several hundred units a year without waiting for the expressway."

Developers also will limit commercial building to a "neighborhood center" that would include a market and drug store. Garwin said that the commercial development is designed to draw customers from within San Antonio Lakes and did not expect it to impact Upland streets.

The initial "phase-in" would equal about 25 percent of the San Antonio Lakes plan, said Garwin. In the mean time, he said, the new plan would include traffic mitigation measures to lighten traffic loads on already busy streets by adding turn lanes and widening intersections.

Construction would commence on other segments of San Antonio Lakes after the expressway construction was under way, Garwin said.

Because of the Pennhill offer, a final decision on the San Antonio Lakes plan could be postponed until after a decision is reached about the expressway, possibly in August.

When Pennhill brought its plan before the council in a public hearing Monday, several Upland council members said that the traffic issue could keep them from voting in favor of it.

The proposed project would consist of nearly 1,500 residential units on a 440.5-acre plot of land between 17th and 20th streets east of Campus Avenue and west of the city facility recently erected on the site without city permits.

Buller said the code enforcement division will delay action on the non-permitted use of the small portion of the site until the appeal is decided.

Stork said the district needs time to choose its course and look for alternatives. "We're not ready at this point," he said.

It will not be easy for the district to find another site, Stork said.

Tickets available for 1st R.C. Mayor's Ball

Tickets now are available for Rancho Cucamonga's first Mayor's Ball, a formal black tieonly fund-raiser to be held at the Red Hill Country Club.

The Feb. 25 event, sponsored by the Rancho Cucamonga Community Foundation, will be a night of dinner, then dancing to live music, according to organizers.

Because there is limited seating at the $100-per person event, tickets can be obtained through direct invitation only.

Those wishing to receive invitations can contact Susan Mickey at Rancho Cucamonga City Hall, 989-1851.

Funds derived from the ball will go toward cultural event programming in Rancho Cucamonga.

Community Foundation
Chairwoman Jeanne Barton said the first of these programs will likely be a children's concert sometime in the fall.

the balloons, Burnett said.

"So far no one has been injured, but the potential for injury is real," he said.

Damage caused by the balloons has knocked down power lines, which can start fires or pose threats of electrocution.

On April 28 of this year, an Edison transformer damaged by a metal balloon in Montclair fell to the ground, nearly hitting a woman and small child, Burnett said.

"Whether you are near power lines or not, metallic balloons should not be released into the air," he said.

Despite all the damage, Edison is not seeking a ban of the balloons. Instead, the utility is "working very closely with metallic balloon retailers to determine where the problem can be resolved," Burnett said.

And Edison has launched a massive public relations campaign through advertising and the media to explain the dangers of metallic balloons, he said.

"We urge that metallic balloons be held onto tightly when outside or that they be secured to a stationary object," he said. INDIAN HILL MALL

By Diana E. Lundin

A big surprise may be in store when residents open up their December gas bill.

Bob Mack, Southern California Gas Co.'s district manager, said customers may be "shocked" to receive their gas bills, which may be double or even triple if they used gas for heat.

All users — residential, commercial and industrial were responsible for consuming some 115 billion cubic feet of gas during an unusually chilly December.

"It's the largest amount of gas customers have used in one month," said Mack. That consumption topped a previously set high of 107 billion cubic feet for last January.

"Residential customers turned up their thermostats to keep warm and as a result, can expect to see a doubling or even tripling in their gas bills for the cold weather period," he said.

During a typical winter month, an average single-family home uses enough natural gas for a bill of $38, he said.

But doubling the amount of gas for heat during December's cold spell, that same household's bill would triple to $115 or more.

Gas bills may triple even though usage has only doubled because of a state-mandated inverted rate structure, which charges more per gas unit after a certain level is reached.

When customers consume more than 72 therms of gas a month in the winter, the charge per unit of gas nearly triples — from 35 cents per therm to 95 cents.

That structure was designed to restrain energy use, Mack

More cold weather is predicted this month, Mack said, suggesting thermostats be set at 55 degrees at night and 68 degrees during the day to keep as bills lower.
